SYMPOSIUM SUMMARY

On the occasion of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Milutin Milankovitch, Serbian Academy of Sciences and Arts is organizing an international symposium aimed at reviewing the state-of-the-art of climate science as it relates to the scientific work of Milankovitch. The emphasis of the symposium will be paleoclimate, but present understanding of the Earth's climate dynamics, and a summary of the numerical tools used nowadays will be briefly covered. Review lectures will be presented on paleoclimate record – deep sea cores, continents, caves, ice cores, on long-term climate data analysis, modeling, and astronomical forcing. Milankovitch's life and work, the colorful memories he has left of the events of his time, and his opus as a poetic science writer, will also be highlighted. The symposium will consist of invited lectures, but will include poster sessions to accommodate a limited number of contributed papers.

The list of expected invited speakers includes: R. Bates, A. Berger, J.Cl. Duplessy, V. Dymnikov, J. Fleming, D. Hartman, F. Hilgen, H. Hooghiemstra, J. Imbrie, J. Jouzel, G. Kukla, J. Kutzbach, F. Mesinger, M. Mudelsee, D. Raynaud, M. Sarnthein, T. Stocker, P. Yiou.
